- “For people who lost the Yuan Qi, all because of the qi lost in liver. So if people who is extremely weak and qi deficient, there will be signs for liver wind movement. The live wind movement is the early sign of Yuan Qi lost. The liver and gall bladder are depended to each other. The gall bladder is Lesser Yang, the major symptoms is cold-hot alternately; liver is Reverting Yin, when it's in extreme deficiency, it also shows cold-hot alternately. Because the cold-hot alternately, so it generates the sweat. San Zhu Yu can not only reduce the sweat generating, but also tonify the liver as well. So it's the best choice when patient's losing Yuan Qi because of liver qi extremely deficient.”

Prescription used by Dr. Ke Li

- Wen Shi Ben Tun Tang :

Fu Zi 30 ~ 200g      Rou Gui 10g      Hong Shen 10 ~ 30g

San Yao 30 ~ 60g      Fu Ling 30g      Ze Xie 30g
Huai Niu Xi 10g      Zhi Gan Cao 60g

- Effect: Warm up and tonify the pre-birth ture fire in Ming-Man. Save and strengthen the Yuan Yang from losing. Tonify the Fire element to generate Earth element, reduce the dampness to wake up the Spleen. Tonify the Earth element to control the Water element, so it can reduce the edema. Let air flow into lung efficiently and reduce the asthma. Nourish the Chun Mai, induce the fire back to the origin. Reduce the qi upward. It can repel the coldness accumulated in all internal organs, get rid of the coldness inside the bone. So it can repel the coldness, move the qi and ease the pain.

- Tou Nong San ( From “外科正宗” ) :

Huang Qi 12g      Dang Gui 6g      Chao Chuan San Jia 3g
Zao Jiao Ci 4.5g      Chuan Xiong 9g

- “About the Huang Qi using in the formula, if it used in Sheng Huang Qi, it can tonify the qi and repel the pus; if using the Zhi Huang Qi then it can only tonify the Qi but can not repel the pus, and it will enhance the fire and poison caused by the pus. So it has to be using the Sheng Huang Qi. Use large dosage of Sheng Huang Qi to tonify the qi and repel the pus as major ingredient, assist with Dang Gui, Chuan Xiong to nourish the blood and increase blood circulation. Using San Jia and Zao Ci to reduce the tumor, soften and break down the mass. Yellow wine helps to moving the herb inside meridians and reduce the stasis. All ingredients work together to break down the pus and repel the poison out of body.”

- Qian Yang Dan (鄭欽安“醫理真傳”) :

Sha Ren 30g ( fried with Sheng Jiang juice) , Fu Zi 24g , Gui Ban 6g , Gan Cao 15g

- What Qian Yang Dan does induce the qi back and into kidney. The ingredient San Ren is acrid and warm, which can repel the bad Yin energy in the middle of body, and it can induce the qi back and into kidney. Fu Zi is acrid and hot, which can tonify the true Yang in the water element. The true Yang the is the fundamental of Jun Huo. So tonify the true fire is to tonify the Jun Huo. About the ingredient Gui Ban, it is hard and born with the essence of water element, so it can communicate the Yin to assist Yang. People who use it to tonify the Yin and enhance water flowing is not the correct way. It assists with Gan Cao to tonify the Chun Qi, has the effect to balance the fire and water. So it's called Qian Yang ( Descend the Yang). It's not like Si Ni Tang jia Gan Jiang, but using the Sha Ren fried with ginger juice to get the effect of descending the Yang and inducing the qi back. In this way it will not damage the essence and waste the qi.
